1. Introduction

There are outstanding business opportunities in Jordan, and the new Jordan-U.S. Free Trade Agreement gives American companies even greater access to this growing market-an important gateway to the Middle East.

The Jordan Free Trade Agreement (FTA) was signed in October 2000. President Bush signed its implementing legislation on September 28, 2001, and the agreement went into force on December 17, 2001. It is the United States' third free trade agreement, and the first with an Arab state. It will eliminate tariffs on virtually all trade between the U.S. and Jordan within ten years.

Jordan is one of the few trading partners with which the U.S. consistently enjoys a trade surplus. In 2000, U.S. exports to Jordan were $306 million. In the same year, the U.S. imported $73 million in products from Jordan. In 2001, U.S. exports to Jordan grew to $343 million.

Under the leadership of King Abdullah, Jordan has demonstrated its commitment to economic reform, especially in privatization and in improving the investment climate. Jordan became a member of the World Trade Organization in April 2000, undertaking legislative reform and developing a stronger intellectual property rights regime. The government has partially privatized the national telecommunications company and the state-owned cement firm, and is in the process of privatizing the national airline. Reforms to the customs, taxation, and investment laws have also improved Jordan's business climate.

The Qualifying Industrial Zones (QIZs) are another example of successful economic cooperation between the United States and Jordan. Established by Congress in 1996, the QIZ initiative allows certain products to enter the United States duty-free in order to support peace in the Middle East by encouraging economic integration between Israel and Jordan or Israel and Egypt. To date eleven QIZs have been designated in Jordan. QIZ factories have created nearly 16,000 jobs for Jordanians, and the number is expected to continue increasing rapidly. The government is also developing the port of Aqaba as a Special Economic Zone, with no duties, low taxes, minimal bureaucracy, and investor-friendly policies.

Jordan is becoming an increasingly attractive market for global trade and investment, and is seeking to become a business gateway and trade hub for the entire region. The Free Trade Agreement, along with continued growth in the Qualifying Industrial Zones and Aqaba Special Economic Zone should both strengthen Jordan's economy and create a more attractive market for international trade and investment.

This guide contains the following information to help you make the most of the Jordan Free Trade Agreement:

- A guide to government and other resources to help you sell to Jordan

2. FTA Product Schedules

The FTA will eliminate tariffs on U.S. and Jordanian goods and services over a ten-year period. Many U.S. products can already be exported to Jordan duty-free. To determine how the FTA affects your product's entry to Jordan, check the Jordanian tariff schedule, which is available at the U.S. Trade Representative web site at:

www.ustr.gov/regions/eu-med/middleeast/US-JordanFTA.shtml

A complete listing of U.S. products that can currently be imported duty-free to Jordan can be found in the Appendix of this guide. This list will be current until January 1, 2004.

The FTA tariff schedule is coded in the following manner:

Letter codes indicate when tariffs on a particular product will be reduced and ultimately removed. Since Year 2 of the FTA began on January 1, 2002, all tariffs coded 'A' in the schedule are presently duty-free. The Appendix contains a complete listing of these products, with HS codes.

- duties on goods in staging category 'A' will be removed in two equal annual stages beginning on January 1, 2001, and will be duty-free effective January 1, 2002.
- duties on goods in staging category 'B' will be removed in four equal annual stages beginning on January 1, 2001, and will be duty-free effective January 1, 2004.
- duties on goods in staging category 'C' will be removed in five equal annual stages beginning on January 1, 2001, and will be duty-free effective January 1, 2005.
- duties on goods in staging category 'D' will be removed in ten equal annual stages beginning on January 1, 2001, and will be duty-free effective January 1, 2010.
- duties on goods in staging category 'E' will be removed in accordance with existing WTO duty-elimination rates.

Example:

Certain U.S. handbags with a value less than $20 each (HS Code: 42022160) imported into Jordan originally had a tariff of 10%. This product is coded B. Therefore, on January 1, 2001, the tariff was reduced to 7.5%. On January 1, 2002, it was reduced to 5%. On January 1, 2003, it will drop to 2.5%, and on January 1, 2004, U.S. handbags will qualify for duty-free entry to Jordan.

Note: Interim duties for products in categories B, C, D, and E will be rounded down, at least to the nearest tenth of a percentage point (e.g., 3.75% becomes 3.7 %).

3. Marketing your Products in Jordan

Following Jordan's accession to the WTO, the government amended the Commercial Agents and Mediators Law to make the law compatible with WTO requirements (the law has been issued in the Official Gazette in December 2001).

The current Commercial Agents and Mediator Law governs the contract between foreign firms and commercial agents. It clearly delineates the distinction between commercial agency and distribution contracts relationships. Private foreign entities, whether licensed under sole foreign ownership or as a joint venture, compete on an equal basis with local companies.

The most significant provisions affecting the principal/agent relationship are:

- The Commercial agent or commercial mediator must be a Jordanian national, or a Jordanian company registered in accordance with the provisions of this Law. (Article 3)
- Once an agency contract is signed, the agent must take the agreement to the Registrar of Companies at the Ministry of Industry and Trade for filing agents' names and all other related information regarding their agencies in the Kingdom, and another record for filing commercial-mediators. No person shall be entitled to act as an agent or commercial-mediator in the Kingdom unless registered in the commercial agents register or the commercial mediators register. (Articles 4, 5, and 6)
- Notwithstanding the contents of the provisions of this Law, or any other legislation, Jordanians and non-Jordanians shall be prohibited from practicing the business of commercial agency or commercial mediation in the import or sale of arms (weapons), or their complementary or developing parts, or the ammunitions which are supplied to the Jordanian Armed Forces and security organizations, including the maintenance of such arms and their insurance. (Article 12)
- Foreign companies and institutions registered to operate in the Kingdom may not practice in addition to its activities, the representation of foreign companies incorporated abroad under a commercial agency. This prohibition, however shall not include the commercial agencies which were registered in their name for this purpose prior to the effectiveness (implementation) of the provisions of this Law. (Article 13)
- Where the principal cancels the agency contract prior to the expiry of its term, without an error from the agent, or for any illegal reason, then the agent will be entitled to claim the principal to compensate him for the damages suffered by him, as well as for his loss of profit. (Article 14)

- The Jordanian courts shall be the competent courts to look into any dispute or conflict arising from the commercial agency contract, or from the implementation of the provisions of this Law. (Article 16A)
- No lawsuit concerning any dispute or conflict arising from the commercial agency contract shall be heard after the lapse of three years from the expiry of the contract or from its termination for any reason whatsoever. (Article 16B)

Please contact the U.S. Commercial Service in Amman (www.csj.org.jo) and E-mail: ammanoffice.box@mail.doc.gov to obtain a complete copy of the Law.

Note: Company Registration, a new regulation No. 14 for the year 2002 has been promulgated by the government amending the old company's regulation No. 50 for the year 1997. A Royal Decree was issued to indorse the new Mediator and Agents Regulation, which stipulates a rise in the fees levied for the registration of new agencies for traders and businessmen in Jordan. According to the new amendments the Ministry of Trade and Industry has raised the registration fees of companies based on the registered capital of the company.

Product Pricing

Local importers base their pricing on the export price, freight costs, applicable import tariffs and taxes, the sales tax and profit margin. Recently, policies on customs valuation have been made compatible with Article VII of the GATT code, which limits the scope for arbitrary assessment. However, U.S. manufacturers and suppliers should coordinate with local representatives before assigning a final price to a product. Out of every 10 customs valuation disputes, nine cases are held up by disagreement over the invoice price. It remains a customs officer's prerogative to reject an exporter's invoice price, which could result in fines or a higher assessed value.

Franchising

Local investors are increasingly interested in franchising, especially in services and the fast food industry. Potential prospects should be thoroughly analyzed and tested in the market. U.S. retail and service franchises have increased dramatically in the last several years. Examples include Subway, Pizza Hut, Popeye's, KFC, McDonald's, and Burger King.

Joint Ventures

Joint ventures with Jordanian partners are a good way to enter the market. The advantage lies in the Jordanian partner's market experience, which helps in understanding local competition, pricing, and marketing, and in bridging cultural gaps when conducting business. They are also essential in some services where foreign ownership/share of companies cannot exceed 50%.

One of Jordan's two mobile phone companies is a U.S./Jordanian joint venture. Other joint ventures exist in the Al Hassan Industrial Estate QIZ and the mining and contracting sectors of the economy. Over the past year, Jordan Bromine has been set up as a joint venture between Arab Potash and the U.S. firm Albemarle Corporation. Joint ventures in contracting require 50% local partnership.

Establishing an office in Jordan

The Companies Act of 1997 provides guidance for registering foreign companies and establishing regional and representative offices. The law distinguishes between four types of business entities:

Non-Operating Foreign Companies (Regional Offices);
Operating Foreign Companies (Branch or Project Offices);
Offshore Companies; and
Joint Ventures.

Non-operating Foreign Companies (Regional Offices)

A non-operating foreign company is a company, establishes a regional or representative office to represent the affairs, which it conducts outside Jordan, with the intention of using its regional or representative office in directing the said affairs and coordinating them with the head office. Such a company is not allowed to conduct any business or commercial activity in Jordan, including activities of agents and middlemen. In addition, the number of Jordanian employees should not be less than half of the total number of employees.

Non-operating foreign companies enjoy numerous incentives such as:

- Exemption from income and social service taxes on profits generated from business conducted outside Jordan;
- Exemption from income and social service taxes on wages and salaries of non-Jordanian employees;
- Exemption from customs fees and other charges on imports of office equipment, furniture, business samples and demonstration models. The only tax paid on such imports is the sales tax; and others. Non-Jordanian employees are granted a residence and work permit

Operating Foreign Companies (Branch or Project Offices)

An operating foreign company is a company or a body registered outside Jordan, head office is in another country, and whose nationality is non-Jordanian. Such companies are classified into two types according to the nature of their activities:

Non-Permanent: a foreign company that has been awarded a contract in Jordan requiring the execution of work within a limited period of time (e.g. a construction contract). Upon termination of the contract, a new one may be obtained in order to extend the period of operation. If the company obtains no new contract, then the branch office must be closed and liquidated.

Permanent: a branch office operating in Jordan permanently with licenses to that effect from the concerned authorities.

An operating foreign company is allowed to conduct commercial activities in Jordan after registering and obtaining a work permit.

Registration fees paid for a branch office are JD 250, if the share capital of the foreign company at its home office does not exceed the equivalent of JD 1 million, and JD 500 if it exceeds the equivalent of JD 1 million. (Conversion rate JD 1= US$ 1.41).

A branch or project office must notify the Controller of Companies in writing of the date it expects its operations to end in Jordan, or the date specified for the termination thereof, at least 30 days prior to that date. It must prove to the Controller of Companies the settlement of all its commitments resulting from operating in Jordan prior to the cancellation of registration.

Offshore Companies

An offshore company can take the form of a private shareholding company with limited liability, a limited partnership in shares, or a public shareholding company. The offshore company is listed as a Jordanian entity, but cannot conduct any business in Jordan. Furthermore, the words "Exempt Company" must be added to the name of the company.

Offshore companies cannot offer their shares for public subscription in Jordan. They are obliged to invest a minimum of 5% of the share capital in securities traded in the Amman Stock Exchange.

The minimum share capital of an offshore company depends upon its form:

- JD 30,000 for a private shareholding company with limited liability.
- JD 500,000 for a public shareholding company.
- JD 1,000,000 for companies offering financial services (banking, insurance, and re-insurance). (Conversion rate JD 1 = US$ 1.41).

Upon incorporation, if an offshore company takes the form of a public shareholding company it must pay a registration fee of JD 5,000, and in all other cases it must pay JD 1,000. The same fees are levied annually. Stamp duties due on registration amount to JD 5 per mil (1,000) of its share capital.

Joint Ventures

A joint venture is a commercial undertaking formed by two or more persons, who may be natural persons or legal entities. A joint venture is not subject to the provisions and procedures of registration and licensing and does not have a separate legal identity.

However, a joint venture is confined to the special relationship between partners in the venture as specified in the joint venture agreement.

General Registration Procedures

- All enterprises, whatever their legal form, operating in Jordan must register with the Controller of Companies at the Ministry of Industry and Trade. Only joint ventures are excluded. Foreign companies seeking to open a regional office or a branch in Jordan must apply to the Controller of Companies for registration by submitting all necessary documents in Arabic.
- Companies operating in Jordan must register with the Chamber of Commerce or the Chamber of Industry, as applicable.
- All companies operating in Jordan should register with the Income Tax Department.
- Companies employing more than five people must register with the Social Security Corporation.
- All enterprises must obtain an annual license from the concerned municipality.
- Industrial projects can receive an industrial registration certificate from the Ministry of Industry and Trade upon completing an application with the Department of Industrial Development.

The Jordan Investment Board stands ready to assist investors through every step of the investment process. Please do not hesitate to call upon the staff at JIB for guidance through the following registration procedures.

For details, you may refer to www.jordaninvestment.com and www.aci.org.jo.

Sales Training/Customer Service

Service and customer support are important selling points in Jordan. U.S. firms that compete with European and Asian suppliers find that workshops and training seminars for local agents or sub-contracting firms are useful add-ons to make a deal more attractive.

Selling to the Jordanian Government

The General Supplies Department is the government's procurement agency. A local agent/distributor or representative must be appointed to act on behalf of any potential American supplier for local tenders. Direct bids for tenders financed by international donors or the World Bank may be permitted as stated in tender documents.

Jordan is preparing an application to become the first developing country in the world to accede to the WTO's Government Procurement Agreement. Once Jordan accedes, access to its government procurement market for American companies will be liberalized.

Due Diligence

U.S. companies interested in contracting local agents should conduct thorough due diligence prior to signing any contracts. The U.S. Commercial Service in Amman is able to conduct confidential background checks on local companies via an International Company Profile (ICP), a fee-based service available through the U.S. Department of Commerce or directly through the Embassy (refer to www.buyusa.gov/jordan). In addition, there are a number of internationally recognized accounting and auditing firms in Jordan that can provide research into local companies.

Advertising and Trade Promotion

U.S.-style contests, giveaways, drawings and other creative promotions are gaining popularity as consumers become more sophisticated and competition increases. U.S. exporters can participate in local exhibitions and advertise in newspapers, television, radio, and business journals as a means to locate agents, distributors or buyers. Billboards and electronic screens are also in widespread use. The main local newspapers include the following:

- Jordan Times (English daily)
- Al-Rai (Arabic daily)
- Al-Dustour (Arabic daily)
- Al-Aswaq (Arabic daily)
- Al-Arab al-Yawm (Arabic daily)

4. Rules of Origin

Origin rules are used to determine what country an imported product is from in cases where two or more countries contribute materials, labor, or both to its production. In a preferential trade agreement like this Free Trade Agreement, rules of origin are designed to ensure that the benefits of the FTA go to Jordan and the U.S., and not a third country.

The FTA's rules of origin prevent producers in other countries from simply passing their goods through the U.S. or Jordan to gain duty-free access to either market. The rules are designed to ensure that only products that have been significantly manufactured in the U.S. or Jordan will enjoy duty-free treatment when exported to the other country.

The FTA's rules of origin are not substantially different from standard rules of origin, and U.S. exporters will be familiar with them. One exception, however, is a provision that allows Jordanian content, up to a certain percentage, to count toward the 35% domestic content requirement.

For U.S. goods to meet FTA standards for export to Jordan, they must satisfy three requirements:

- Goods must be made entirely in the U.S.
 - If any third-country materials are used, they must be “substantially transformed” by manufacturing or processing into U.S. goods
- Goods must contain at least 35% U.S. content
 - See note below regarding exception for Jordanian content
- Goods must be shipped directly from the U.S. to Jordan

Wholly Obtained/ Substantial Transformation Requirement

U.S. goods exported to Jordan must be made entirely in the U.S., or, if any third-country materials are used, those materials must be “substantially transformed” into U.S.-origin products as a result of U.S. manufacturing or processing. A substantial transformation requires a change in the essential quality of a good.

- Few products, other than agricultural products, are wholly obtained in a single country. Examples of wholly obtained agricultural goods include animals that are raised or hunted in the U.S., products obtained from live animals in the U.S. (e.g. eggs), or plant products harvested in the U.S. Other wholly obtained products include mineral products that are mined in the U.S. or scrap and waste from manufacturing or processing that is fit only for recovery of raw materials. Very few U.S. manufactured goods fall into the wholly obtained category.
- A product is substantially transformed when it undergoes a change in “name, character, or use” that is deemed “substantial.” Some examples of substantial transformation include:

Peanuts	→	Peanut butter
Wood	→	Wood chair
Glass sheet	→	Car windshield

Some examples of manufacturing or processing that does not meet the “substantial transformation” qualification include:

Blank ceramic vase	→	Hand-painted vase
Steel pipe	→	Steel pipe cut to length
Unfinished wood chairs	→	Finished wood chairs

It can be difficult to determine if a good meets this qualification. Refer to the U.S.-Jordan Free Trade Agreement Rules of Origin Manual, available free at www.usembassy-amman.org.jo/FTA/FTA.html for a detailed summary of this requirement. Contact the U.S. Commercial Service at the American Embassy in Amman (see Chapter 7 for contact information) for help determining whether your product meets this requirement.

35% Domestic Content Requirement

The FTA requires that 35% of the customs value of the product exported to Jordan must be attributed to U.S. origin materials and/or to U.S. direct costs of processing. However, the value of Jordanian-origin materials can be counted toward this domestic content requirement as well, but only up to 15% of the customs value.

- For example, good x contains 20% U.S.-origin materials by value. Good x also contains 15% Jordanian-origin materials. Therefore, the good meets the 35% domestic content requirement and qualifies for preferential treatment under the FTA.

Direct Transport Requirement

To ensure that U.S. goods are not mixed with non-qualifying goods while en route to Jordan, the FTA contains a “direct transport” requirement. This will require proof that the goods are shipped directly from the U.S. to Jordan, with certain exceptions. The FTA allows the following three kinds of shipments:

- The U.S. exporter ships the goods directly to Jordan without passing through any other country. This includes direct air flights from the U.S. to Jordan and ocean shipments direct from the U.S. to the port of Aqaba.
- The U.S. exporter ships the goods to Jordan via third countries, and the goods remain under customs control when passing through the third country. This includes air or ocean shipments from the U.S. to a Persian Gulf country, which are then carried by truck or rail in-transit to Jordan.
- The U.S. exporter ships the goods to a third country, where the goods are placed in a customs warehouse or customs-controlled free trade zone prior to shipment to Jordan. The goods may not be processed while in the third country.

For more detailed information on the FTA's rules of origin, including special rules for textiles and apparel and examples of direct processing costs, please refer to the U.S.-Jordan Free Trade Agreement Rules of Origin Manual, available free at www.usembassy-amman.org.jo/FTA/FTA.html.

5. Documentation Requirements

For import to Jordan, every customs declaration must include the following documentation:

- Maritime or air bill of lading.
- Commercial invoice indicating value, weight, freight and insurance charges etc.
 - Invoices should be notarized by the Jordanian embassy or consulate in the U.S. Certification by the local chamber of commerce is sufficient in cases where a Jordanian consulate is not available.
- A notarized certificate of origin issued by the relevant authority, usually a chamber of commerce, in the exporter's local area.
- Value declaration form for shipments exceeding JD 2,000 ($2,820).

The customs department may request other documents related to the shipment in special cases. The documentary requirements for goods shipped under the FTA are identical to requirements for goods shipped outside the FTA. There are no special documentary requirements for FTA-qualified shipments.

Invoices are not required to be written in Arabic. However, if the invoice is in English or another language other than Arabic, the importer is required to provide a translation in Arabic. This is usually done by hand directly on the invoice itself. U.S. Commercial Service staff at the American Embassy in Amman can provide translation services; contact them for details and fees. See Chapter 7 for contact information.

Customs Law

The customs law of 1999 was amended in March 2000 to include WTO-compliant criteria for customs valuation (which is based on certified invoices) and to make the valuation process clearly defined and more transparent. The law restricts customs officers' mandate to use arbitrary valuation but still rewards those who uncover invoice misreporting and impose penalties on importers.

The customs valuation is CIF-based. The value of the imported good is converted into JD at the official central bank exchange rate (1 JD = USD 1.41). In some cases, invoice or export discounts have been included in the valuation by the customs department. Still, the exporter should consult the local importer to determine how to best grant any such discounts or rebates.

Import Licenses

Import licenses are required for imports of:

- Non-commercial shipments exceeding JD 2,000 in value
- Biscuits of all types
- Mineral water
- Dried milk for industry

- Used tires
- Certain goods imported from Syria with which Jordan has special trade balance arrangements
- Items requiring prior clearance from specific authorities (for a complete list, see
- "special import provisions")

Goods entering the country under temporary entry status, bonded goods and goods benefiting from the investment promotion law are exempt from import licenses (refer to www.jordaninvestment.com).

All Jordanian and foreign trading companies must either obtain an importer's card from the Ministry of Industry and Trade for customs clearance purposes, or pay Customs a fee equivalent to 5% of the value of the imported goods. At the Ministry a complete and updated list of all import requirements and provisions is periodically issued. For non-trading entities such as banks, hospitals and hotels, the ministry issues a special, "limited" card that allows the import of goods specific to that entity's purpose.

Temporary Entry

Temporary entry to Jordan is allowed for goods and machinery needed for the execution of projects, to perform scientific tests, or for promotional purposes. These items can not be sold or given away. Examples include commercial samples intended for display, items imported for exhibitions or trade shows, containers and packaging entering Jordan to be filled, and inspection equipment imported for maintenance purposes. Temporary entry status must be approved by Jordanian customs and is for a maximum three-year period. Temporary entry exemptions may be obtained by submitting a written request, accompanied by supporting documentation, to the customs department.

Contact the U.S. Commercial Service at the American Embassy in Amman (see Chapter 7 for contact information) for more information on Jordan's import requirements under the FTA.

6. Special Issues: IPR, the Internet, and Environmental and Labor Issues

Intellectual Property Rights

The FTA incorporates the most up-to-date international standards for copyright protection. The provisions on intellectual property right build on the strong IPR commitments Jordan made in acceding to the WTO. Among other things, Jordan is seeking to ratify and implement the World Intellectual Property Organization's (WIPO) Copyright Treaty and WIPO Performances and Phonograms Treaty within two years. The FTA, and a side letter on special provisions for pharmaceutical products signed at the same time, include data exclusivity for pharmaceuticals and stepped-up commitments on enforcement.

The Internet

For the first time in a free trade agreement, Jordan and the U.S. have each committed to promoting free trade in electronic commerce. Both countries agree to avoid imposing customs duties on electronic transmissions, imposing unnecessary barriers to market access for digital products, and impeding the ability to electronically deliver services.

These provisions also tie in with commitments in the service area that together aim at encouraging investment in new technologies and stimulating the innovative uses of networks to deliver products and services. The agreement will significantly liberalize bilateral trade in services across a wide range of services sectors.

Labor and Environmental Provisions

The agreement also contains trade-related environmental and labor provisions. These provisions will not require either country to adopt any new labor or environmental laws, and each country retains the right to set its own labor and environmental standards and to change those standards. As part of the agreement, the two countries affirm the importance of not waiving or derogating from their labor or environmental laws in order to encourage trade, and commit to effective enforcement of their domestic labor and environmental laws.
